David Batts LEED AP

David is Director of Construction EcoServices, System Sales in Houston. Mr. Batts is a veteran in the exploration of how low impact development can drastically impact not only the ecology of a given development, but also the economics.

He is a co-founder of the Texas Land/Water Sustainability Forum, a non-profit, collaborative effort among local regulators, decision makers, and design professionals to explore ideas, methods, materials, and technologies related to the sustainability of land and water in Texas' growing urban environment.

By working through both the non-profit and for a construction company that specializes in LID design and construction, Mr. Batts has a unique perspective on how LID should be implemented from both the regulator and contractor levels.
